

FRENCH AND AMERICANS LAUNCH SURPRISE OFFENSIVE IN VERDUN SECTOR

GERMANS WORK ON DEFENSES BEHIND HINDENBURG LINE

Three Systems Of Trenches Constructed To Prepare for Further Retreat

PROBABLY NEEDED

Paris Predicts Enemy Will Be Unable To Stand In Present Positions

NEW BATTLE SOON

Fight For Possession Of St. Quentin Said To Be Certain

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Paris, September 10.—The enemy has three lines of defense behind the Hindenburg Line.

The first, the Hindenburg-Lille Line, runs south of Lille, west of Douai and Cambrai, east of Le Cateau and Fresnoy, along the left bank of the Oise and the right bank of the Serre, through Sissonne and southeast of Vouziers and crosses the Meuse north of Verdun, joining the present front on the Moselle a dozen miles south of Metz.

The second line, known as the Metz-Lille Line, runs from the Scarpe seven miles east of Douai, across the Scheldt, through Le Cateau and Hirson, west of Mezieres and Sedan, along the right bank of the Meuse, west of Briey and Conflans and joins the Hindenburg Line at Pagny-sur-Moselle.

The third line runs from Valenciennes to Givet and on this line the Germans are working feverishly at the present time.

Paris, September 11.—The official communiqué issued this afternoon reports:

There has been nothing except artillery actions at various points along the Aisne and Vesle and in Champagne.

Further Retreat To Come

Paris, September 11, 8:45 p.m.—Unable to carry out their plan of keeping their adversary west of the Crozat Canal, which would have covered St. Quentin on the southwest and La Fere on the west, the Germans also have been unable to prevent General Debenedy's troops making further progress westward. The latter, through their occupation of Travecy, which is north of La Fere, have thrust a new wedge into the Hindenburg Line.

The obstinate and desperate resistance of the Germans must yield in the end to our attacks. The French troops are less than six kilometers from St. Quentin and it is evident that our guns must intervene strongly to destroy the organizations of the enemy, where machine-guns and a swarm of tanks are bringing their powerful help to our infantry, thus achieving the destructive work of our bombardment. There will therefore be a new battle. Our summer offensive comes to an end after fifty-three days in the most crushing defeat the Germans have ever sustained.

A violent artillery duel is proceeding in Lorraine and Vosges.

Enemy Defense Desperate

London, September 12.—The enemy is offering a desperate defense in front of the subterranean portion of the St. Quentin Canal, which part of the Hindenburg Line is vulnerable to tank attacks. The ground in the Gouzeaucourt-Epehy sector, where the German counter-attacks are most violent, rises to a height of 450 feet, dominating this portion of the Canal. The British are steadily increasing their gains in this region.

The continuance of bad weather favors the German defenses but the French, despite the floods, are pushing ahead. They have cut the German line between La Fere and St. Quentin and it is now expected that their artillery will resume the preponderating role in preparation for

Gordius Nielsen, Breathing Fire, Has His Face Slapped By Little Mr. Judah Ezra

Is Dared To Repeat Epithet, Does So, Gets Ears Boxed, Whereupon He Retires, Threatening To Sue For Assault

A diversion in the baseball scandal libel proceedings popped loudly up in a courtroom of the Mixed Court yesterday when the rubicund countenance of Mr. Gordius Nielsen was reverberatingly slapped by Mr. Judah I. Ezra, following remarks directed to Mr. Ezra by Mr. Nielsen during the absence of Mixed Court officials. Mr. Nielsen was also punched.

The episode occurred while the parties in the suit were awaiting the arrival of the Assessor and Magistrate. Through a misunderstanding the court had not reconvened for the hearing and the principals with their attorneys and friends were lingering about the courtroom and corridors. Everyone seemed more or less restless and there was considerable wandering in and about.

One of the strollers was Mr. Nielsen. And one of his peregrinations led him out into the hallway to the rear of the courtroom, near the doorway of which Mr. V. Gensburger chanced to be standing. The latter drew slightly aside to allow Mr. Nielsen to pass, made no sign of recognition and was looking in another direction when Mr. Nielsen turned his head and gratuitously remarked:

"You are a dirty swindler and I'm going to land you in jail."

Mr. Gensburger registered astonishment and then demanded to know what right Mr. Nielsen had to call him a swindler. Whereupon Mr. Nielsen wagged a finger in the other's face and reiterated in pedantic tones, like a schoolmaster trying to impress an unruly youngster:

"Yes, you are a swindler and I'm going to see that you go to jail."

Having delivered himself Mr. Nielsen turned and walked back into the courtroom. Near the reporters' bench he passed Mr. Judah Ezra, "You are a swindler," said Mr. Nielsen repeating the formula almost exactly as used to Mr. Gensburger. "And I'll have you in jail." He had said the same thing the day before.

Mr. Ezra, who was evidently not expecting any converse with the editor of the Gazette, appeared taken aback. Then he asked Mr. Nielsen to repeat the remark.

Mr. Nielsen obliged. Whereupon, "without the slightest warning," there thwacked out in the startled courtroom a spanking sound reminiscent of corporal agonies in the long gone nursery days. Which the same was caused by the right palm of Mr. Judah Ezra, standing a-tiptoe, coming into animated juxtaposition with Mr. Nielsen's left cheek seemingly causing him a great deal of amazement.

Mr. Nielsen did not fight back, but called loudly for a lawyer. One report had it that, in the excitement of the moment, he yelled "Kame-rad!"

Friends of both sides crowded up and Mr. Nielsen retired sputtering to the lawyer's bench.

The principal figures in the courtroom during the festivities, besides

GERMAN SOCIALISTS MAKE FOOD DEMAND

Memorial To Hertling Cites Grave Conditions Among Masses Of Population

(Reuter's Agency War Service)
London, September 11.—The German Majority Socialists and the Trade Unionists have addressed a memorial to Count Hertling, the German Chancellor, declaring that the conditions of life for large masses of the population are extremely critical owing to the shortage of food, as the result of which the mortality among children and aged people has increased and the health of the working classes is grievously affected. They state that the situation is bound to become fatal unless the government abandons its policy of favoring producers.

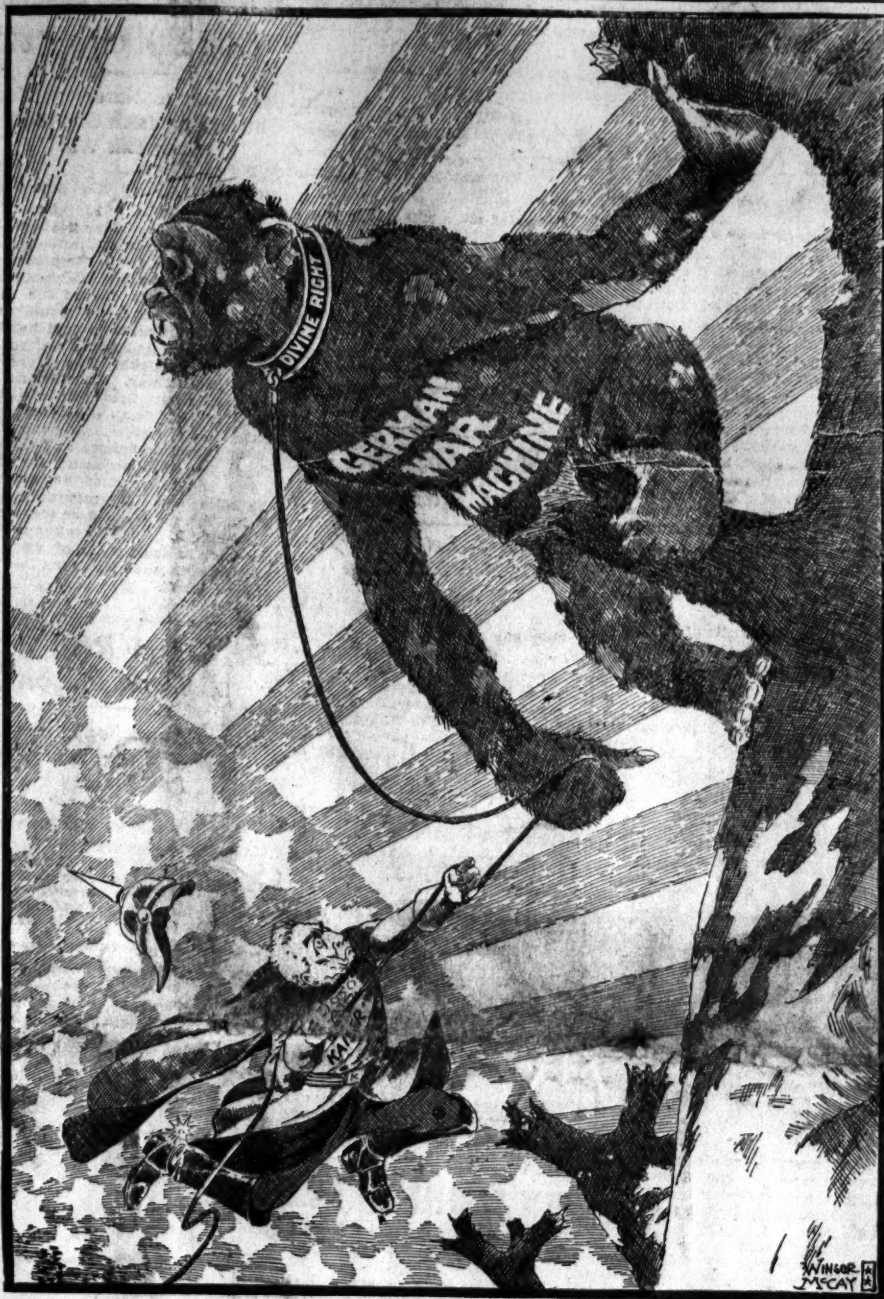

The opinion is expressed in London that the above is probably part of the new German peace offensive and has for its object the arousing of sympathy abroad. It is worth while to note in this connection that very gloomy accounts of the food situation in Austria continue to be received through German sources.

GERMANS RETIRE

OTHER PROGRESS

French Cut Enemy's Line Between La Fere And
St. Quentin

The Battle In Brief

The Franco-American forces have sprung a complete surprise by launching an offensive on a twenty-mile front south and west of St. Mihiel in the historic Verdun sector. First reports say the Germans are retreating.

On the Hindenburg Line further retreat by the enemy is predicted by the French. Another wedge was thrust into the line by the capture of Travecy. The French have cut the German line between La Fere and St. Quentin.

The British have captured Attily, Vermand and Vendelles.

(Reuter's Agency War Service)
London, September 12, 4:35 p.m.—A Franco-American attack on a big front in the Verdun sector has commenced.

The Franco-American forces are attacking on fronts of twelve miles south and eight miles west of St. Mihiel.

Reuter's correspondent at the American headquarters at Nancy reports:

The Franco-Americans attacked between 5 and 8 o'clock this morning on either side of the St. Mihiel salient. The attack was preceded by a barrage which lasted for four hours. The southern attack was on a front of twelve miles and the western on a front of eight miles.

The weather is fine. There is a great concentration of artillery and aeroplanes.

Enemy Falling Back
The attack has been successful up to the present and the enemy is falling back on both fronts.

The enemy, though undoubtedly suspicious of our intention in this region, were not aware of the time and direction of the attack.

Our troops are immensely eager and are fighting magnificently. London, September 11.—Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters reports today:

Our screening troops yesterday morning gained appreciable ground between Gouzeaucourt and Epehy, entered Peziere and advanced our line of posts. We took 200 prisoners.

The enemy is clearly employing delaying tactics between the present outpost zone and the Hindenburg Line.

Considerable booty is still coming in, including 300 supply wagons from Tincourt.

The Germans are using a novel kind of mortar grenade emitting a very acrid gas which burns grass. Several were fired at some advancing New Zealand troops without checking their progress.

Belgians Make Raid
A Belgian official communiqué reports:

With a view to enlarging our successes on August 26 and September 9, we attacked on a front of two miles. After a violent struggle the positions held by the enemy were carried and maintained, comprising an advance of 400 meters. We took 71 prisoners. Our losses were light.

A German official communiqué reports:

Fresh enemy attacks in the neighborhood of Gouzeaucourt and Eppey led to violent fighting. The enemy reached our first line at a few points. Our counter-attack drove him back. We took 202 prisoners.

Strong enemy attacks between the Ailette and the Aisne failed.

British Advance Lines
London, September 11.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports this morning:

We advanced our line yesterday in the direction of Attily and Verdun.

During the night time the enemy again attacked in strength our positions on the ridge westward of Gouzeaucourt. After sharp fighting he was completely beaten off except at one point, where a post remained in his possession.

During local fighting a strong party of the enemy entered our trenches in the neighborhood of Moeuvres but our counter-attack repulsed them.

The enemy was also repulsed at Ecourt-St. Quentin after stiff fighting.

We advanced our line slightly westward of Erquinghem.

Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports this morning:

We carried out a successful local operation early this morning northward of Eppey, advancing our line and taking a number of prisoners.

We made progress on the southern portion of the battlefield in the neighborhood of Verdun.

We repulsed an attempted attack on one of our posts westwards of Gouzeaucourt.

We captured a few prisoners and established posts in the enemy's forward positions as the result of local fighting northward of Hulluch and southward of the La Bassée Canal.

There was a considerable hostile artillery bombardment yesterday evening in the Havrincourt Wood sector.

Aviation.—Heavy rain storms hindered work in the air. One British machine did not return.

Three Towns Captured

London, September 12.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports: Yesterday evening we captured Attily, Verdun and Vendelles and during the night progressed in the western outskirts of Holnon Wood.

English troops carried out successful local operations yesterday afternoon in the Havrincourt-Moeuvres sector, overcoming considerable opposition.

We have crossed the Canal-du-Nord northward of Havrincourt and established ourselves on the western bank eastward and northward of Moeuvres.

During the night we captured the strongly fortified position known as the railway triangle, southward of La Bassée, taking a number of prisoners and machine-guns.

The German official communique reports:

English attacks this evening against the Marquain-Havrincourt canal sector failed.

French Repulse Counter

Paris, September 11.—The official communique issued this evening reports: An enemy counter-attack south-east of Roupy was repulsed, some prisoners and machine-guns being captured.

During the past twenty-four hours the enemy has made six attempts to reach our new positions in the region of Laffaux and Goeux-sur-Aisne, every one was repulsed. We took 150 prisoners.

Paris, September 12.—The official communique issued this afternoon reports:

North of the Ailette we made a raid and took some prisoners.

There has been artillery in the region of Rheims and Promes.

Two enemy raids in Champagne and Vosges were repulsed.

German Expert Predicts

British Attack At Cambrai

(Reuter's Agency War Service)
Amsterdam, September 11.—The Vossische Zeitung publishes a significant article by Captain von Salzmann, who anticipates shortly a heavy British attack in the Cambrai sector. He says that the German lines before Cambrai cannot be regarded as the final lines of resistance. He further deprecates the importance of the St. Quentin Canal, declaring that the main lines of defense lie still further east and also says that the Germans can, without running any risk, voluntarily abandon any territory south of the Aisne and retire on Chemin-des-Dames.

Germany Fighting For Its Existence, Says Teuton Paper

Reaction Against Extreme Militarists Is Becoming Outspoken In Press

(Reuter's Agency War Service)
Amsterdam, September 11.—The war correspondent of the Cologne Gazette warns the German people that they must continue to fight, not for power, but for bare existence. He declares that the enemies of Germany are not attacking the dynasty or the State system but the German people and Germany is like a ship in the midst of a hurricane.

The King of Bavaria speaking at a banquet given at Sofia by the King of Bulgaria in his honor, said:

"We are now fighting to preserve humanity, kultur and civilization from irreparable damage."

Further evidence of how responsible opinion in many countries, with significant unanimity, is sobering down, continues to come from various quarters. Thus Professor Delbrück declares that the Pan-Germans are not only largely guilty for the war but especially for its continuance. He attacks the U-boat politicians for their extravagant expectation and asserts that the world is justified in demanding a guarantee that Pan-Germanism is not the spirit of the German people.

Similar views are voiced by the Internationale Korrespondenz, which does not consider Count Hertling sufficiently strong to cope with the reactionaries and believes the Entente can only be weakened morally if a markedly democratic government is formed.

The report of the Vorwarts on Count Hertling's article cabled yesterday shows that he plainly indicated that Germany was responsible for the refusal to agree to a diminution in the competition for armaments.

the main actors, were Mr. Eugene Chen, former editor of the Gazette, Mr. Ellis Ezra, Mr. Gensburger, Mr. Elias and a few friends of both parties. Mr. N. C. Home, attorney for Mr. Ezra, did not happen to be on the spot when the slap was administered but arrived before the perflage died down. As mentioned, there were no court or police officials present at the time.

Shortly afterward the several parties left the court, Mr. Chen in the meantime having produced security in the amount of $6,000, presumably in connection with the agreement reached by court and counsel in chambers Wednesday.

It was announced in Mr. Nielsen's organ that he was taking immediate steps to prosecute Mr. Judah Ezra for assault.

*See Shanghai Gazette of September 13, 1918.

After many years absence, Captain Kettle arrived on the deck of the Mixed Court yesterday in all his old swashbuckling style, but the Captain must have lost most of his admitted old fighting qualities, for an undersized jockey knocked him off the bridge with one punch and would have probably finished him off for good and all, but for the timely interference of the crew and passengers of the good ship Mixed Court. It is presumed he will now confine himself to dirty writing and leave off challenging.

PAY BY CHECK

Paying by check is a simple, easy method of keeping track of every expenditure made from day to day.

The cancelled checks as returned to you each month by this bank are RECEIPTS, the stubs in your checkbook an accurate ACCOUNT of every dollar spent.

Even months from now you can go back to your checkbook and know at a glance to whom and for what you've paid out money.

If you pay cash there's always a chance of losing the money—in which case it's a dead loss. If you lose a check it's worthless to the finder—or to make doubly sure you can easily order payment on it stopped.

Adopt the pay-by-check system in meeting personal and household bills. Saves time, trouble, worry and money for you.

(Reuter's Agency War Service)
London, September 12.—Mr. W. F. Massey, Premier of New Zealand, interviewed by a representative of the Morning Post on the completion of his work for the War Cabinet Conference, said that one of the most abiding impressions he would take back to New Zealand would be that Great Britain had never before attained such heights of greatness as in the present war. No other nation could do what Great Britain had done in training, equipping and maintaining armies, in munition making, in war finance and in providing the ships necessary for commerce, the transport of the troops of the Allies and their munitions. No nation the world has ever seen could have done it. She had taken a leading part in four years of war, yet her strength and determination was undiminished.

Tokyo, September 12.—War Office official. The headquarters of the Twelfth Division entered Harbarovsk on the 10th. A gunboat from Blagovestchensk was captured.

Irkutsk, September 12.—The mobilisation of the Siberian forces continues satisfactorily.

The Bolsheviks have captured Kazan. The retirement of the Siberian troops from that city was carried out in an orderly manner. Sarapoltovo is free of the Bolsheviks.

A political assembly of all the new Provincial Governments has opened at Ufa. The object of the assembly is to organise an authority for the whole of Russia.

Vladivostok, September 12.—The Japanese Staff announces that their gunboats landed an armed party at Nicholaisvsk on the 8th which disarmed all the Soviet forces in the town. There was no resistance.

Blagovestchensk, the great center of Bolshevik activities in the Far East since the revolution last October, is being closed in from all sides. Japanese troops are advancing from Harbarovsk and Chita, while the Chinese forces are concentrating opposite the town on the south bank of the River Amur.

Owing to news that a large body of German regulars is being sent to the Volga, the Czech staff has decided to despatch two contingents immediately to that front to reinforce their compatriots, without waiting for supplies of warm clothing, although the frosty season is already commencing in Siberia.

The British troops are now guarding the railroad from Spasski to Ussuri.

Delegates from the Buriats, the great native race of Siberia in the Trans-Baikal region, has presented General Galda with a silver image of Buddha as a token and thanks-offering for their liberation from the Bolsheviks.

Y. M. C. A. Man From China Now In France Relates Experiences

(The following letter was written last July by Paul F. Paris, a former A. P. M. Missionary in Ichowfu, to Mr. K. K. Thompson, also of Ichowfu. It tells of Mr. Paris' work with the Chinese laborers in France.)

Somewhere in France, July 22.—I have been thinking of you several times lately; perhaps it is because now I am, like you, living like a small island in a foreign sea, entirely surrounded by "Chinks." (as the British Tommy calls my Chinese friends). As a matter of fact, I am surrounded more by British soldiers than by Chinese laborers, but the latter are hereabouts in abundance. I feel like a man without a country—an American in France, connected with the British army, and working with Chinese—it is some mixup!

On June 4, I left New York with a hundred or so other Y.M.C.A. men. From June 16 to 19, after a long, cold but eventless voyage, we saw something of England, that island whose doughty sons made it possible for France to keep the Hun at bay until your Uncle Samuel could "get into the game." Since June 20 I have been in this "la belle France." And it certainly is "belle." The woods and hills, valleys and streams, cities and towns, farms and fields of both England and France are so beautiful and valuable that a war for their defense is very much worth while, not to speak of the fine people to whom these belong. So I declare, and it is being felt, apparently, by the thousands of American, French, British and Italian soldiers I have seen since reaching this side.

Three busy and pleasant days I had in London, followed by nine similar days in Paris, where I lingered while waiting for the American army headquarters to issue me a "red card," a permit to do Y.M.C.A. work over here. Then came two weeks in an American Y.M.C.A. canteen, followed by a hurried return to Paris on receipt of a telegram saying that my British army permit to work among Chinese laborers was ready.

The two weeks were intensely interesting and full of new experiences, with of course considerable hard work—though with no real hardship. I was in a large city far from all recent fighting, but the center of important work in the "S. O. S.", which is the American equivalent for the British "L. of C."—line of communications; it means "Service of Supplies" and suggests bread, beef, munitions and so on for American troops. Many American troops entered our canteen daily, to be served (at cost) with cakes, tobacco, cigarettes, cigars, fruits (fresh, dried and canned) and, occasionally, lemonade and ice cream.

This is peculiarly taxing work and continues (except for meals) from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 or 10 p.m. with an hour or so off some time each day for rest. I used much of my rest in writing letters.

The work goes on seven days a week, though each of us usually got one day off a week—never Sunday however—for that was our busiest day, because many of the soldiers have it as their holiday. Three events of note marked each Sunday—a brief religious service in the evening (at which I spoke ten minutes each time); an excursion (or two) to the local art gallery, one of the best in France, led by the hut secretary and participated in by about 20 soldiers; and serving ice cream. This gallery has some (a few) of the best known paintings in the world—originals. I led two such parties to the gallery, but these were on week days.

As to the ice cream, this was a genuine event. To serve it there were required at least four persons. The men stood in line along the counter and reaching almost to the door. As they filed past each paid 50 centimes (10 cents) then passed on to the freezer, where two Y.M.

C.A. women dished out the cream and a man assisted them in this or in lading out some fruit to go on the top of the cream—making a "sundae," in fact. So continuous was the line in each case that the large freezer (I think it contained five gallons) was emptied in thirty-five minutes; once (a very warm day) it was done in twenty minutes. Besides taking in the 50 centimes, I made change from larger amounts, varying upward from one franc to twenty, and sold cakes to go with the cream.

Well, those days are over. Three days ago I left Paris once more, this time for the north, to the British area. It would be interesting to tell you just where I am, but the censor would be liable to be hurt if I did so—and rightly; of course, for the Hun hates this place quite enough already, and censors don't like to give him any information as to names of places. They let him work hard for all such information—which he does hard enough, dear knows, as his airplanes (and air raids) testify.

However, it won't do the Hun any good for me to tell you (1) occasionally I can hear heavy cannon if I listen really hard; (2) I have seen evidences of his work hereabouts; (3) He has not yet hit me! Really, though, this is not fair; it sounds as though I were under fire; I am not; I was only joking in No. 3. In fact, I don't expect to be hit—or even be near enough to Hun shells to be even scared—certainly not for some time.

In these three days I have traveled over considerable ground with the British Y.M.C.A. area leader in this immediate section, on foot, by motor car and motor lorries or trucks. We have visited several camps for Chinese laborers and inspected a proposed location near one of these for a 40 x 30 feet marquee for my "hut" work. This will be pitched in a few days, with a smaller round tent for me to live in. By the end of the week I shall be in my new station, living among perhaps 250 Chinese, and shall be the only American within several miles and with only a few British in the camp. With these British (officers, mostly) I shall "mess," as plans now go. The work will be general missionary work, with the operation of a small canteen in the marquee, and with the main purpose of keeping the Chinese from wasting their time, money, strength and character in dissipation.

Probably I have talked with 30 of the Chinese in these three days. They seem to be all from Shantung; I found men from Tsinan, Taichowfu, Taingtau (Tsangkou), with one from a town 25 miles or so north of Ichowfu. I was told by one of them that there were several church members in his camp. I don't know how it will be in my own camp in this regard.

Well, I shan't be uncomfortable. I shall have (I am using it now in this big British Y.M.C.A. hut) a cot like those the Methodist Publishing House used to sell; with blankets (no sheets) and a khaki cushion for a pillow. The food the British officers have is good, though served in British style. Were you ever an American alone among thousands of Englishmen? No? Well, it is interesting, though I can see it may get lonely some day—when I am not busy.

The following address should be used to reach me by letter: c/o Y.M.C.A., 12 Rue d'Aguesseau, Paris, France.

Sincerely,
PAUL F. PARIS.

REVOLUTIONISTS UNITE FOR ATTACK ON SIANFU

Shensi Rebels Approach City
From Four Sides; Governor
Cut Off By Troops

China Press Correspondence.
Sianfu, Shensi, Sept. 2.—The revolutionary party in this province is again on the warpath. For the past half year it has been satisfied with holding the territory north of the Wei River from the Shansi border west to a distance about one hundred li west of Sianfu. Evidently lack of ammunition forbade attacking the governor. Then the different factions, five in number, were not united so that they could co-operate in making an attack. About five weeks ago they made certain compromises which allowed of their appointing Deng Si-ling as head man and all factions receive orders from his office, which is at Sanyuanhsien.

Sianfu is again about to be attacked. About two weeks ago several thousand troops belonging to the revolutionary party came across the Wei River and are headed for Sianfu from three directions. It would seem that the Governor is much better equipped to oppose them than he was last spring, for his troops are opposing the rebels from the three roads, while last spring he did not have enough men to even block one road efficiently. The rebels are within about thirty-five li of the city and a good deal of real fighting has taken place. Before this they had been merely playing at war and trying to use up the ammunition without killing or injuring anyone. It would seem that the troops guarding the Wei River were there to hold up civilians from doing business with the city, for when the rebels decided to come across they effected a passage at three points without any great trouble.

If the rebels are able to continue a real siege on Sianfu they will cause much suffering for fuel is quite scarce to start with. For the past half year coal has only got to the city from one direction, as the coal coming from Shansi by way of the Wei River has been blocked. Coal is now about $63.00 per ton and continues to rise in price. Wheat in the city seems to be plentiful. The farmers living about the city not knowing what to expect sold their crop as soon as it was harvested. They felt that it would be much easier to dig a hole and bury the few dollars than hide their crops from robbers. Flour can be purchased for about two and a half cents per pound.

It is reported that Goh Glen has surrounded the governor west of Sianfu so that he has been cut off for five or six days from communication with the city. If the soldiers in the city remain true it will be very questionable whether the rebels can take the place with the equipment which they possess.

North of the Wei River about sixty li there is a new organization known as the Eng Do (hard fighters). Its members are running into the thousands. Their society is a secret order and holds its meetings in the night. It is anti-Christian and has some things in common with the "Boxers" of 1901. Their bodies are supposed to be immune to bullets. It was only last week that they received a serious check to their program. Goh Glen shot some four hundred of them and burned out their villages, nine in number. The thing which provoked the rebel government to take this action was, they found that many times when sending a handful of soldiers on cross-country trips failed to make connections, and upon investigation found that the Eng Do had surrounded them and killed all and then did away with the bodies, thus securing their rifles and ammunition. In other places the Eng Do refused to supply grain, straw, oil, and flour to the revolutionary camp. Now, if recognized, these Eng Do are taken and despatched without much ceremony.

The people of the province are in a sad plight, and all hope that the present effort will turn the tide. While they do not know what would be the outcome if the rebels secured the city of Sianfu, still they see little hope for peace while Chen is governor. The present governor in referring to the revolutionary party styles them robbers. This is a great mistake for they stand, at this writing, as much for peace and order as the governor, and moreover while he only recognizes them thus his chances of getting help to cope with the real situation are small. It would seem that the revolutionary party are taking hold of the things in earnest just now and some change should be expected before many weeks.

British Report Reveals German Cruelty In Africa

Definite Cases Given Of Barbarity To Natives, Including Extermination Of Tribes

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, September 11.—Mr. E. H. L. Gorges, Administrator of the Protectorate of South West Africa, has presented one of the most sensational reports ever issued in connection with German methods in her colonies. It constitutes a most damning indictment of German fitness to rule black native races and it is brimful with well authenticated instances of rapine, murder and lust, of chicanery and slavery and of despoliation of the simple and harmless natives of South West Africa.

The evidence on which the report is based is drawn from official German documents, at Windhoek, from sworn statements by native chiefs and Europeans familiar with the country and from the writings of Colonel Leutwein, who was Governor of South West Africa from 1894 to 1906. Dr. Paul Rohrbach, Professor Dr. Karl Dove and other unimpeachable German sources. Altogether the report constitutes a telling reply to the recent claim made by Dr. Solf that "Germany's humane treatment of native races before the war won for her the moral right to be a great colonial power." In view of this claim the following statement by the British Administrator of South West Africa is interesting:

"Native opinion here is unanimously against any idea of their ever being handed back to the tender mercies of Germany. Any suggestion of the possibility of an act of this kind on the part of Great Britain produces the utmost consternation."

Oppression And Cruelty
The report shows that the first twenty-five years of German rule in South West Africa, was an unbroken record of official bad faith and private oppression, cruelty, barbarities and robberies which culminated in the Herero and Hottentot rebellions. During the first seventeen years there was no law for the natives and such protection as the law eventually provided was not dictated by considerations of humanity but in order to exploit the natives as laborers.

When the Germans first arrived, says Mr. Gorges, they entered into agreements with the native chiefs but these became scraps of paper and the natives were fraudulently deprived of their best land. The German traders and settlers robbed them of their cattle, which was their only wealth, and the law subsequently prevented the natives possessing large stocks. The natives were thus driven to work for ridiculously inadequate wages which were often not paid. They were treated like slaves while their women-folk were habitually maltreated by the Germans, who took them into forced concubinage. These were some of the things which goaded the natives into rebellions, which were suppressed with such ruthless cruelty that they resulted in the practical extermination of the three tribes involved. The Hereros were reduced from 80,000 to 15,000, the Hottentots from 20,000 to 9,000 and the Berg Damaras from 30,000 to 12,500. Thus eighty percent of the Herero people disappeared and more than half of the Hottentots and Berg Damaras shared the same fate.

Extermination Order Issued
How it was done was to supersede the lenient Governor, Colonel Leutwein, by the notorious von Trotha, where he had suppressed an Arab rebellion by wholesale massacre. Von Trotha issued "An Extermination Order," the terms of which were that no Herero, man, woman, child or babe, was to receive mercy or quarter. "Kill every one of them. Take no prisoners," he said.

These orders were only too faithfully carried out. There is for instance the story of a native who was formerly von Trotha's groom, who describes how he was once ordered to kill a young Herero woman. He refused in disgust, whereupon a German soldier showed him how to do it and then held the bayonet dripping with blood before his face. Officers and other soldiers were standing around but not one of them interfered on behalf of the woman.

Another occasion was when the German soldiers played ball with a nine-month babe. They got tired of this and finished the game by catching the wee mite on the point of a fixed bayonet, transfixing its body amidst the fiendish laughter of the gamesters, who seemed to think it a great joke.

A reliable witness deposed that he was two years with von Trotha and knew no instance of prisoners being spared.

Brutal Excesses Admitted
Even after the rebellions the surviving natives fared but little better. One of the most significant documents in the report is a secret circular addressed in 1912 by the German Governor, Dr. Seltz, to the magistrates of the Colony. In this he refers to the very desperate feeling which is becoming prevalent among the natives. "The reason," he states, "which is unanimously given for this fact is that the brutal excesses committed by Europeans against natives are increasing in an alarming manner. It is much to be regretted that even police officers become guilty of such offenses in a few cases and such offenses are not punished by the courts of law in the way they ought to be according to a sense of justice to the natives."

Mr. Gorges supplies sworn statements by natives which give some idea of the reign of terror existing among the natives. He adds, "The instances of cruelty, injustice and barbarism might be multiplied almost indefinitely. Instances of gross and bestial conduct, which for sheer depravity and immorality are well nigh unbelievable, are also contained in the file of affidavits but they are hardly fit for publication."

Part two of the report deals at length with the position of natives before the law. The German ordinance governing criminal jurisdiction over the natives contains provisions repugnant to every conception of justice. Natives were not tried in the ordinary courts but by officers who also did police duties and had authority to delegate their judicial powers to subordinate officers. Imprisonment in chains and flogging were allowed not only for serious crimes but as "A disciplinary measure" on the application of an employer or for offenses against the Master and Servants' Law: for example, insubordination, or continued idleness, or neglect of duty.

Natives Held In Terror
From the records of the German courts it is clear that the evidence of natives was habitually disregarded and natives were not allowed to give evidence on oath.

The natives were thus kept in a state of abject fear. No opportunity for redress was open to them and they did not dare to go to the police with complaints.

Crimes committed by Germans, however, against the natives were either hushed up or tolerated by the courts with amazing leniency.

The case of Lieutenant Venuleth is a striking commentary of the German vaunts of superior civilisation. This officer held a court-martial on a native man and woman for the theft of some cattle. He constituted himself president of the court and supplied practically the only evidence taken, with the result that the natives were condemned and shot. The poor creatures were not even present at their so-called trial but were sentenced in their absence. Lieutenant Venuleth was subsequently arrested by the British authorities and tried for murder.

Another ugly occurrence was a savage assault committed by a German named Ludwig Cramer on certain native women, two of whom he flogged so severely that they died. Yet the German court only imposed a sentence of four months imprisonment and a fine of marks 3,250.

Gruesome photographs are given in the report of hangings and floggings of natives. Executions were carried out in a manner which would have been considered brutal 200 years ago. One method was to stand the victims on boxes while ropes were being adjusted round their necks. The boxes were then kicked or pulled away. The hanging habit was a feature of the native administration and also flogging. Three out of every four natives convicted in the courts of German South West Africa in 1913 were flogged. The Germans did their flogging in the crudest way with a long sjambok capable of causing very grave injury or death and as many as fifty strokes were given at a time.

Reconstructive Work in Peking

It is not a little heartening to think that in the midst of the destructive forces that are at play in Peking there are constructive influences at work that constitute a bright beam of light in an otherwise atmosphere of overwhelming gloom. One of the outstanding influences for social and physical betterment in China has been the Rockefeller Medical Foundation, with which is incorporated the Peking Union Medical College, which not very long ago was bought out by the Rockefeller organization in China. It was a happy thought that led to the transaction whereby the college has been merged in the Rockefeller Foundation, which promises to develop before many years have elapsed into one of the largest institutions in the world for the prevention and cure of disease. The beneficent and healing influences that will flow out of the Medical School and Hospital that are being erected in Peking and similar institutions that are to be built in Shanghai will, curiously enough, have as their fountain-head the biggest and most powerful commercial organization in the world.

We had occasion some time ago to touch briefly on the work of the Rockefeller Foundation in China. Today our thoughts are directed towards the same subject by the receipt of a copy of a brochure which has been sent us by the Peking Union Medical College covering the scope of its working for the year 1918-19. A good deal of water has flowed under the bridges since the Medical School of the Peking Union Medical College was founded early in the year 1906, following the disorganization of mission work that resulted from the Boxer outbreak. The reorganized Peking Union Medical College will open for the instruction of students in September of next year. The work of the reorganized Medical College will be divided between two schools—the Medical School, which will give a four years' course and an additional year of special work in the laboratories or hospital, and what is known as the Pre-Medical School, which will offer a three years' course preparatory to admission to the Medical School. The Pre-Medical was opened in September of last year.

One of the brightest chapters in the history of foreign missionary enterprise in this country was the spirit of co-operation manifested by the various missionary bodies on the morrow of the Boxer debacle which alone could have rendered possible the successful and effective operation of the Medical School. The extent of that co-operation can best be grasped when it is stated that the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions (Congregational), the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, the London Missionary Society, and later the Peking University (Methodist), the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel (Anglican) and the Medical Missionary Association of London all co-operated in the development of the medical college.

From the reactionary Empress Dowager and high Chinese officials, chastened by the aftermath of the Boxer madness, added the work by making substantial contributions toward the building fund, while the Board of Education registered the college and gave certain special privileges which had been previously accorded only to government schools—a token of goodwill that was not a little momentous in view of the temper of the Manchu Mandarinate of the period. The Union Medical College rendered especially valuable service at the time of the pneumonic plague in Manchuria in 1910-11 and in the revolution of 1911. During the progress of the devastating epidemic the staff and students were conspicuously helpful in combating the outbreak. Three of the staff were decorated with the Order of the Double Dragon for services at that troublous time. In the Revolution of 1911 Dr. J. G. Gibb organized the staff and students into Red Cross companies which did most of the military surgical work on the Imperial side.

In the spring of 1914, the Rockefeller Foundation sent the China Medical Commission, consisting of President Harry Pratt Judson of the University of Chicago, Mr. Roger Sherman Greene, then Consul-General of the United States at Hankow and now Resident Director of the Rockefeller Medical Foundation (China Medical Board) and Dr. Francis Weld Peabody of the Harvard Medical School, to China "to inquire into the condition of medical education, hospitals, and public health in China." In their recommendations the Commission advised that the first medical work organized should be in the city of Peking and that it be in connection with the Union Medical College if suitable arrangements could be made. Following the report of this Commission, the China Medical Board of the Rockefeller Foundation was created. The first important act of the China Medical Board was the acquisition of the property of the Union Medical College in Peking. On July 1, 1915, the China Medical Board assumed the full support of the college, after suitable arrangements had been made and the terms of the transfer settled. The Board later purchased the residence property of Mr. Ying, adjoining the Union Medical College to the south, some land next to the hospital of the College, belonging to Prince I, and the extensive residence property of Prince Yu, some three hundred feet west of the laboratory building of the College, the latter being a tract of more than eight acres. After the most careful thought devoted by the responsible officers of the Rockefeller Foundation to the question of developing medical education and research in China, a definite plan has been formulated and the ambitious program that has been outlined is being proceeded with and will shortly come to fruition.

The above summary of the history and organization of the Peking Union Medical College is not altogether without interest in connection with an organization that is going to fill a big place in the reconstructive era of this country. It will not only give China a powerful weapon for combating disease and death, thus raising the level of Chinese social and physical life, but will equip future generations of Chinese with a progressive and up-to-date seat of medical learning where a knowledge of the science of healing may be acquired equal to that to be obtained in Europe or America, and where the standard of the degrees conferred on successful medical students will be equal in value to those granted by the world's leading medical institutions. Such an institution in China will have the further advantage of providing Chinese at their very gates with an opportunity of acquiring medical knowledge at correspondingly lesser cost than is possible in Europe or America.

The Russian Problem And Its Solution

Intellectual Forces In Russia

By Manuel Komroff

VI.

THE Russian is by nature a very peaceful man. He can endure more humiliation without protesting than any man I know of. He asks for less from our material world than most of us. A crust of bread and a watery soup would and did satisfy the Russian soldier; he knows no comforts. Yet in spite of the primitiveness of surrounding conditions, he abounds with hospitality and friendliness.

It takes a long time to raise him to a pitch of anger. By nature he is mild and tolerant.

The above sounds quite contradictory to the impression we are apt to receive from the daily papers. Nevertheless it is true. The violence and outrages on our civilization that attract our attention, are committed by a few who have been harboring a spirit of vengeance.

One of the difficulties in the industrialization of Russia, is the fact that the average Russian is little interested in material things. His soul troubles him. It torments him, and tears him to pieces.

He is not very much impressed by our modern civilization, for his soul is in the way. It trips him up at every second step. It delays his work, and torments his mind. Every Russian has within him a little Tolstoy, who asks at each step: "What good is this?" or "How do I know?"

The hard German philosophies of Nietzsche and Treitschke have never penetrated into the heart of Russia. Although every Russian peasant is more of a philosopher than our average business man, still, his doubting nature is always controlled by his big heart. Even if he could read German philosophy, it would leave him cold. They have nothing in common.

"Why Russian literature is so interesting to us," wrote an English critic, "is because, as an uncivilized race, they give us their impressions of our civilization." This is partly true. We are too close to our own civilization to form an honest opinion about it.

Russian Criticism

We have examined things on the surface. We have tabulated facts and reviewed the differences of various factions in Russia. Before attempting a conclusion, however, let us plunge for a moment beneath the surface. We may find something of great value. Let us explore the soul of the Russian. Let us see ourselves, as he sees us. And let us consider his criticism of our civilization, before attempting to force that civilization upon him.

The extreme businessness of our modern activity has not been able to penetrate into Russia. Extreme commercialism, on the whole, has also failed to impress its importance on the average Russian mind. Great interest in political measures is also not diffused throughout the land. The Russian as I have said is troubled by his soul.

When I was writing about the Moscow Conference a year ago, it was difficult to get an honest opinion on the subject. Finally, I asked the janitor of our house; surely he would not be influenced by Petrograd politics.

"Gregory," I said, "What do you think of the Moscow Conference?" And all he replied was: "Let go my soul!"

At first I laughed every time I thought of the reply, but not now. I find it so logical and consistent with the attitude of the average Russian.

When we speak of the average Russian, we do not mean those who speak French, or those of university training. We mean the great multitude; we mean those who have stood the brunt of the war; we mean the hundred and seventy-nine million, and not the single million of the upper class.

The average Russian is quiet, slow to do things, and not over-bright. He calls our strenuous life of today: "an extreme businessness of nothing." He hopes that Russia will not fall under that yoke.

I speak to him, in an attempt to enlighten him as to the true aims of our modern civilization, and point out his poverty.

"But we desire so little," he replies.

"But you have the raw products. Why do you not manufacture the little you need?"

"Ah, then we would have factories, and smoke, and crippled children, and poverty, like London and New York."

Previous to the war, Russia knew no physical poverty. There was always plenty of bread; only mental poverty existed, but this was as common among the rich as among the poor.

"But you are after all an uncivilized race; you need education before the world can safely take you into her civilization."

And the poor man then points to the war map over my desk and says: "This is the result of your civilization; of your refinements and culture. God save Russia from it!"

A dreadful earnestness rings in his voice, and I feel ashamed of myself. Was I beaten by my janitor?

For a while, I would smile at the replies of "an average" Russian. I would pardon his opinion by calling it naive or childish. It is true he is uneducated, but he is by no means unintelligent. Little by little, the earnestness of his ideas took hold of me. And when I came out of Russia, I was not at all surprised to find some of our most modern writers thinking about the same thing. I do not refer to the war pessimists.

Brotherhood Of Man

The war has caused many of us to think. It has also created a comradeship, binding men of different classes by mutual ties of ideas and sympathies. Class distinctions have been thrown overboard. Rich and poor, scholars and working men, are working side by side to free the world from the clutches of Germany. The long idealized Brotherhood of Man came into existence over-night. Humanity is tied by a bond of sympathy for those who have suffered or are suffering now.

Care must be taken that we do not slide back, after the war, into our former condition; that we do not crawl into our hard shells of smug contentment and prejudice; that our ears do not again become deaf to those who are destined to suffer again; that our hearts do not harden towards the under-dog; that we do not again create that dreadful ring of vanity about ourselves, to separate our particular class from the rest of humanity. In short, we should take care not to lose that Spirit of Brotherhood that the war has created. We have already paid dearly for it, and should cherish it.

Russia is very much endowed with this Spirit of Brotherhood. It even existed before the war, except perhaps with the aristocracy and the very rich. Mutual suffering and oppression created a lasting bond of sympathy.

The Middle Class

Although we have spoken about the upper classes in Russia, we have not mentioned the middle class, the professionals, the small business men, the students and their teachers. What has become of them since the Revolution?

The middle class, as a friend of mine once pointed out, is not at all included in the scheme of Socialism. The Socialists have underestimated both the size and importance of this class. Their philosophies favor only the masses in the struggle for existence.

Before the war the middle classes in Russia were very important. They were the first to champion the cause of the serfs, they were the first to demand a constitution for Russia. They were the class that led the Revolution in 1905. They had a majority of all those who were imprisoned and exiled. They suffered for their ideas as well for as their deeds.

When the Revolution broke out, this class was at first quite prominent. Kerensky and the majority of his cabinet were members of that class. Many of them were in the army. The rule of the Bolsheviks placed the members of this class in an awkward position. There was no place for them. There was no room for brains, culture or training. Doctors and teachers continued to practice their profession, but had no thing in common with the Government, established to benefit only the masses. Lawyers, of course, had to seek other means of livelihood.

The class as a whole grew discontented; they had no representation in the Government. Brains were considered as capital; and capital as an enemy to society. Literary men, musicians and artists, fled. Russia's power of expression was submerged in darkness.

A few of the most sacrificing members of this class, joined hands with the Bolsheviks, and tried to help them. But they were soon disgusted with the one-sidedness of the cause; with the lack of vision that the principles presented; with its extreme materialism, a materialism opposed to the nature of the Russian people.

That Spirit of Brotherhood that had existed between the intellectual or middle class, and the more lower classes is now ruptured. Each class is now antagonizing the other classes. Spiritual Russia is plunged into a materialistic Civil War. And through it all, I hear the voice of Gregory, the janitor:

"Let go my soul."

Penetrate the surface, fathom the attitude, or turn the soul of the average Russian inside out, and you will find nothing but goodness of heart. His soul troubles him. His surroundings and even the world have also grown hostile.

(Note: In his next article the last of this remarkable series, appearing tomorrow, Mr. Komroff will propose a "Solution to the Russian Problem" and show "Where the Alphas can Help.")

The Time Waste Of Jury Trials

The following from the Journal of the American Juridical Society should be of local interest in view of the suggestion to import the jury system into American Courts in China; for it shows, what all who have studied the subject carefully have long known, that the jury system is becoming obsolete and that the trend of intelligent opinion in the United States is toward its abolition.

"Mr. Charles A. Boston, of the New York City bar, has addressed a letter to members of the American Bar Association Committee on Jurisprudence and Law Reform in which he suggests a diminution of jury trials as a war-time economy.

"Economic waste involved in the jury system is tremendous at all times," the letter says, "because it sets thirteen men to doing one man's work. In most equity cases one man is adequate to do the work. The disputes in equity involve as serious questions of fact and every consideration of justice is as well met.

"We must diminish the number of jury trials, or excuse from jury service those who are needed in commercial activities, or lose part of our energy needed for war work. The least excusable of the waste chargeable to juries is in respect to the trial of small causes. Thoroughgoing reform implies proper organization of the judiciary so that specialist judges may be cheerfully accepted by litigants in lieu of juries, but conciliation and informal procedure set forth in this number offer great opportunities for immediate progress."

General Foch—A Pen Portrait

Foch is the typical French soldier.

He was born on August 4, 1851, at Tarbes, a little city in the Pyrenees, where his father held an administrative post.

His education was obtained in provincial cities and at the Ecole Polytechnique, which he entered in 1871. He passed through various garrisons as an artillery officer and in 1884 was admitted to the Ecole de Guerre as a student.

Twelve years later, ranking then as a Major, he returned to the Ecole de Guerre as an instructor. After five years in this professorship, in which he showed brilliant powers and exercised a great influence over the students, he was sent back to the line as a Lieutenant Colonel. In 1907 he was transferred, as a Brigadier General, to the post for which he was pre-eminently marked out, that of Commandant of the Ecole de Guerre, where for four years he worked to increase the efficiency of that institution. Later he was given the post of honor of the French Army, the 20th Corps, Headquarters, Nancy. There he found him.

He was the great teacher who, more than any other man in the French Army, created the mode of thought under which his Generals and Staff entered the present war. Classes of young officers, selected from the whole of the army, sat at Foch's feet at the Ecole de Guerre, and carried away with them an unbounded devotion to and faith in the man they had been privileged to listen to. He was an enthusiast and his patriotism and his profession merged into a splendid effort of intellect in which his students delighted.

Later these young officers rapidly came to the front as commanders of French divisions and this enabled Foch, in part, to realize one of his great ambitions, which was that the French Army should be permeated with the doctrine the Ecole de Guerre had taught of belief in the offensive, the offensive at all costs. General Foch will undoubtedly attempt to show us the working of this doctrine in its soundest aspects.

At the first battle of the Marne, afterward, in joint control of the operations that saved the Channel ports, and during the following Winter General Foch rendered the greatest services. From the first day of the invasion until the crisis of last Spring, when Foch was chosen Generalissimo of the Armies of Civilization, it stands out very clearly that, of all the subordinates of Joffre, Foch has had the most consistent record.

The American Army stands joyously under the orders of Ferdinand Foch. We know we shall find no better leader; whatever the issue, we shall cherish his long and proven record as that of a great soldier and a great Frenchman. Our histories will record our pride at having fought under his orders.

Up In The Clouds ☉ By Domino

I MET a man on the train between Seattle and Portland who looked as if he had just heard that the Germans were in Paris, and after awhile he opened his heart to me and told the cause of his worry. It seems that he had come up from his large ranch to get a bunch of fellows together to take the place of the lot who had immediately responded to their country's call. He wanted ten, and all he had managed to gather was one, and he had offered four dollars gold a day with everything found. He said that men could not be got, and no wonder at that, when hundreds were working in the ship yards of Seattle for something like $25 per day. It is absolutely a fact that over a thousand workmen drive down to their work daily in their own motor cars. Seattle is "dry" and the money which went so often into booze is now consumed by petrol and War Saving Stamps.

At that wonderful Camp Lewis, that I went into rapsoodies about in my last article, there is everything that the recruit requires to turn him out as a modern soldier bar one thing, and that is the flying machine. Of the fifty thousand soldiers to be found there, some are American born Chinese, some are men from the Philippines, some are stalwart negroes and the rest are real sons of Uncle Sam from the cut of their fly to the pride of their bearing. Besides hundreds of specially trained American officers, there were commissioned men from the armies of all the Allies. There were British leaders, who had seen service, looking chiefly after the work with the rifle and bayonet. French officers had most to do with trench tactics, and smart Italians were to be seen, careering about directing cavalry operations. Somehow or other you forgot the many nationalities, and you looked upon Camp Lewis as a huge melting pot turning out Allies.

A couple of miles out of Seattle is the University of Washington. I went out there, but in the place of quiet professors the grounds were filled with soldiers and sailors. Formerly there were some six thousand students (both men and women), today there is not half the number of women, and the men have practically disappeared from the classrooms. The beautiful grounds of this home of learning are now laid out chiefly for the training of naval recruits, who for two months are drilled on and off the ship, and then sent to more troublous waters than that upon which former students were wont to paddle and swim.

One part of the campus was being built upon, and I found that an aviation camp was in formation these Piles and piles of material was arriving hourly, and they proved to be parts of the machines which later would take the youths in the Flying Corps far away into the clouds, and later over the lines of the German and perhaps to Berlin itself. Anyhow that seemed to be the ambition of a hero of some eighteen summers who spoke to me. But the camp was only in its initial stages, so let me take you rapidly over the Shasta Mountains, right down to San Francisco, and then over the ferry to Berkeley, and again introduce you to a University; this time the University of California. Here a big Summer School was being held, but the students were chiefly school dames who were spending their well earned vacations in delving deep into books. But the campus was chiefly taken up by the crowds of khaki lads who had deserted the classroom for the canvas tent, and also by hundreds of fine young fellows who were studying the mysteries of aviation.

I have shown pretty clearly how much I appreciated the extraordinary hospitality of the charming Californians, but here especially I should like to mention a professor of the University who is well known to many an American out here.

Professor Noyes took me in hand one day, and after telling me that in the centuries past his folk had come from the heart of England, he described with pride his University, and then gave me the details of the aviation camp.

"Most of our young men like to take up flying, and it is young men who are wanted," he said, "they have the nerve, and they have the dash. The professors who look after the science section here, now devote most of their time to training the bird-men recruits to master and understand the machines which conquer the forces of gravity. We reckon that it takes about thirteen weeks for the average fellow to understand the theory and elementary practice of flying. When they leave us they know how to tinker about with their machines, and also to manage them under the most unfavorable circumstances. The top two or three men have the honor of being shipped straight to France, and then with a few weeks flying behind the lines, they are able to take a worthy part as the eyes of the army."

I gathered that these young fellows put in at least nine hours a day real hard work. They were up in the morning before six putting their own tents square, going through an hour's physical exercise before breakfast, and then occupying their time till midday in theoretical work. In the afternoon they were drilled in squads and given practical work with the machines. The evenings generally saw the lads refreshing tired muscles and minds at one or other of the many good shows in San Francisco, or wandering about the beautiful grounds of the University with more or less beautiful companions.

If these were not war articles, I would like to tell of the wonderful Greek Theater where Mr. Charles Schwab, the absolute wizard of ship-building, addressed over ten thousand people, or of the splendid conceptions that Professor Howard (who by the way told me that he had trained more than one of our architects in the China Realty Company here) has for the new University buildings, or of the unique French and Bancroft libraries, or of the beauty of its situation, but I must deprive myself of these pleasures and hurry away to hear the latest bugle call which sounds.

NEW RIFLE A SUCCESS

1917 Model Shows Remarkable Accuracy in Service Test

Washington, July 27.—Remarkable accuracy obtained with the model 1917 rifle in use by the armed forces of the United States has been demonstrated, the War Department made known today. The scores obtained by four enlisted men shooting ten shots to the minute at a silhouette target at a distance of 100 yards showed only nine misses out of a total of 762 shots fired.

The shooting test was taken at Hattiesburg, Miss., by four members of the 149th Infantry. The best record was obtained by Corporal Burnett Brown, who scored 184 hits out of 185 shots.

ENEMY DESERTERS TATTLE

Americans Get Valuable News Without Difficulty

With the American Army in France, July 26 (delayed).—German soldiers who have deserted into the American lines on the Lorraine front have made disclosures indicating that news of the great American effort is slowly filtering into some sections of the German army, despite the official effort to belittle American participation in the war.

One prisoner said he had heard that there were only 300,000 Americans in France. Others, however, declared they knew the figure totaled 900,000 the majority of whom were brought to France "for other purposes." From the deserters it was learned also that the three Landwehr groups in Germany had been gone over with a fine tooth comb for fresh material to put on the Western front.

On their own initiative the deserters have enabled the Americans to establish not only the exact makeup of the enemy opposite them but to keep track of the shifts on the other side.

Freight Market Report

Messrs. Wheelock and Co., in their Freight Market Report for September 12, write as follows:
 To United Kingdom:—No change.
 To United States via Pacific:—Cargo is gradually getting less and less on this berth, even tea is languishing and we think this state of affairs must be attributed to a great extent to the abnormally high rate of exchange now ruling but there is enough cargo offering from other Ports to maintain rates at the present tariff so that there does not seem to be much likelihood of Trans-Pacific freights coming down in the near future.
 The new Overland Railroad tariff (which took effect on July 25) has arrived and it confirms amongst others the tea rate of $31.875 per 100 lbs. for car-load lots and $37.50 per 100 lbs. for silks, pongees, etc.
 Coastwise:—This market has been quiet but steady during the past fortnight and the demand from northern ports has slackened off a little during the interval.
 For the United Kingdom:—The following boats are advertised: a.s. Iyo Maru for London, a.s. Inaba Maru for Liverpool and a.s. Kawachi Maru for London.
 For New York via Panama:—There is still no vessel declared for this berth but we understand that an N.Y.K. steamer is expected to load about the end of this or beginning of next month.

 No. 1 Crepe $0.55 per pound equivalent to 1s. 3d. ex warehouse Singapore.

 Messrs. Meyer and Measor, Singapore, report that their auctions this week showed prices of 55 cents to 53 cents for Pale Crepe and 55 cents to 50 cents for Smoked Sheet, the tendency of the market being easier.

Coal Market Report

Messrs. Wheelock and Co., in their Coal Market Report for September 12, write as follows:
 Japan Coal:—The market in Shanghai has been very quiet during the past fortnight; there is practically no demand for coal of any sort and there is very little prospect of any business of importance being done until the time comes to commence negotiations for next winter's supplies.
 The market in Japan, however, is stronger than ever owing to the output being still further reduced by the numerous strikes which have taken place recently at various mines in Kynahu, where the miners are demanding higher wages; but the prospects are that a satisfactory settlement will soon be reached when we hope the market will resume its normal course.
 Fushun Coal:—No change.
 Kailash Coal:—No change has taken place since last writing, the market continues dull and there is very little prospect of improvement in the near future. Deliveries under contract are fairly regular but owing to the fewer arrivals, stocks have been reduced.
